OF MAINE.

FUSION OF BRYAN MEN.

The indications now are that there will be complete unity of action on the part of all who are in favor of the election of W. J. Bryan to the Presidency and the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 without the consent of the gold dealers of Europe. In many States the fusion of Populists, silver Republicans and silver Democrats has been effected, and in other States negotiations are pending which will doubtless result in unity of action. Senator Butler of North Carolina, the chairman of the Populist National Committee, seems to be in favor of fusion, and many of the lesser lights of the party are in accord with the chairman. Senator Butler and George P. Kenney of the National Silver party have full charge of the organization of the silver campaign and are working in harmony with Senator Jones, chairman of the National Democratic Committee. The Populist, Silver and Democratic Committees have headquarters in the same building at Washington and will keep in close touch with each other.

The only obstacle in the way of complete fusion is the desire for office. It is said that over one-half the members of the Texas delegation to the Populist National Convention were, or expected to be, candidates for local offices, and thought that the nomination of Bryan by the Populist convention would lessen their chances of election. Of course there were some sincere "middle-of-the-road" men who did not aspire to office and they were used by those who did.

It is broadly hinted here that the principal Populists and Democrats who are opposed to fusion in Nevada are expecting to get office. With them the restoration of silver and the prosperity of the masses of the people is a secondary consideration, the primary one being self-aggrandizement. They may be shrewd enough to conceal their motives at present and thus deceive a few, but later developments will disclose the real cause of their objections to fusion.

Why should men who are sincerely in favor of free coinage by the United States without foreign interference, countenance any movement that tends to divide the silver forces of this or any other State? The battle is between the monopolists, trusts and money kings and the masses of the people. The one representing the single gold standard, which is impoverishing millions, is represented by Mr. Hanna's man, McKinley. The other representing the double standard, the money of the constitution, which will restore prosperity to the country, is represented by Bryan, the champion of the people. With the interests of the masses at stake why should the people permit the bickerings, contentions or ambitions of a few bosses and office seekers to endanger in any way the election of Bryan? At this critical time, when the welfare of the country is involved, partisanship and prejudices should give way to patriotism, and an electoral ticket should be nominated on which each of the three parties in Nevada which are for Bryan and free coinage should be represented. That will consolidate the silver forces of the State and insure the electoral vote to W. J. Bryan by the largest majority ever given a Presidential candidate.

THE GOLD MEN'S PROGRAMME.

It is currently reported that the leaders of the gold party in Nevada, for it must be admitted, strange as it may seem, that there is a gold party in the Silver State, have arranged a programme for the campaign which they expect to carry out with the assistance of men who profess to be for Bryan. They are using every means at their command to create dissensions in the ranks of the Bryan men, and hope that the Populists, the Democrats and the Silver party will each have an electoral State ticket in the field, in which event they will nominate a full ticket with the hope of electing it. Just now the promoters of this scheme are busily engaged in stirring up strife among the Bryan men. They encourage the Populists and the Democrats to nominate tickets and imagine that they are pulling the wool over the eyes of the intelligent men of these parties because the unsophisticated are duped by them.

This is a year in which the people are not disposed to be humbugged. There are great interests involved and no township mass conventions, in which gold applauders make much noise, are going to divide the silver forces and make it possible to carry the State for McKinley, trusts and monopolies. In the language of Lincoln, these tricksters "may fool all of the people some of the time and some of the people all of the time, but they cannot fool all the people all of the time."

WHAT THE GOLD STANDARD MEANS.

All the British papers are not unsubsidized by the gold trust. Some of them state facts and show that they understand what gold monometallism means as well as the American papers, which are not owned nor controlled by the gold gamblers. The London Times and Echo of July 19, 1896, says of the effect of the single gold standard:

If the single gold standard can be forced upon South America and Asia, as it has been since 1873 forced on North America and Europe, gold must inevitably appreciate to at least four times its present absurd value; or, to put it otherwise, commodities must decline to one-fourth of the present prices and labor, all the world over, be crucified as it was never crucified before—in days of mediæval serfdom, or even chattel slavery. Such is the contest. If the money lords can force monometallism upon the whole world, they will succeed in establishing the most gigantic money aristocracy among the rich, and the worst system of peonage serfdom among the "masses" that has ever cursed the hapless sons of men.

These are the views of an English paper which sees things as they are. It has no interest in silver mines, cares nothing about the election of Bryan, but simply states the fact that the adoption of the single gold standard destroys one-half of the world's money and gives a few persons control of the other half who will use it to depreciate the price of products and the wages of the workingman.

SUPPORTING BRYAN.

New York Democrats Falling Into Line. Uppereed Hook, N. Y., August 21.—Candidate Bryan worked all morning on his letter of acceptance and his mail. He will spend the afternoon at a near by fishing resort. After reading the newspaper account of the alleged cordial support of the ticket by the New York Democracy, he said as he did not believe that the situation had been exaggerated and that he believed that New York Democrats would be true to the party nominees. From Syracuse, Buffalo, Rochester and Albany Mr. Bryan has received assurances that arrangements for his meetings in those localities are entirely in charge of the Democratic county committees. After his attention was called to the report of Croker's endorsement of the ticket, he said he was gratified to find so many Eastern Democrats fall into line, and he added that before the campaign closed he expected the cooperation of all Democrats except those whose pecuniary interests might be advanced by the gold standard. It is said that Dr. J. Elkins of New York gave Bryan an intimation that Croker will be with him. Elkins is the brother-in-law of the former Tammany chief.

McKinley Democrats.

OMAHA, August 21.—A meeting of the State Central Committee of the gold standard Democrats, behind closed doors, did not break up until midnight. The members stated that there was perfect unanimity on the question of sending a delegation to the convention at Indianapolis. The general opinion favored a third ticket. The opinion was freely expressed that a full State ticket will be nominated.

BRYAN'S ADDRESS

as the invitation of some one in this country who will give something in exchange for it.

Those who deny the ability of the United States to maintain the parity between gold and silver at the present legal ratio without foreign aid point to Mexico and assert that the opening of our mines will reduce us to a silver basis and raise gold to a premium. It is no reflection upon our sister republic to remind our people that the United States is much greater than Mexico in area, in population and in commercial strength. It is absurd to assert that the United States is not able to do anything which Mexico has failed to accomplish. The one thing necessary in order to maintain the parity is to furnish a demand great enough to utilize all the silver which will come to the mints. That Mexico has failed to do this is not proof that the United States would also fail.

It is also argued that, since a number of the nations have demonetized silver, nothing can be done until all of these nations demonetize silver. This is also illogical. It is humiliated how many or how few nations have open mints, provided there are sufficient open mints to furnish a monetary demand for all the gold and silver available for coinage.

In reply to the argument that improved machinery has lessened the cost of producing silver, it is sufficient to say that the same is true of the production of gold, and yet, notwithstanding that, gold has risen in value. As a matter of fact, the cost of production does not determine the value of the precious metals, except as it may affect the supply. If, for instance, the cost of producing gold should be reduced 90 per cent without any increase in the output, the purchasing power of an ounce of gold would not fall. So long as there is a monetary demand sufficient to take at a fixed mint price all the gold and silver produced, the cost of production need not be considered.

Prices of Gold and Silver.

It is often objected that the prices of gold and silver cannot be fixed in relation to each other because of the variation in the relative production of the metals. This argument also overlooks the fact that, if the demand for both metals at a fixed price is greater than the supply of both, relative production becomes immaterial. In the early part of the present century the annual production of silver was worth, at the coinage ratio, about three times as much as the annual production of gold, whereas, soon after 1840, the annual production of gold became worth about three times as much, at the coinage ratio, as the annual production of silver, and yet, owing to the maintenance of the bimetallic standard, these enormous changes in relative production had but a slight effect upon the relative values of the metals.

It is asserted by our opponents that the free coinage of silver is intended only for the benefit of the mine owners; it must be remembered that free coinage cannot restore to the mine owners any more than demonetization took away, and it must also be remembered that the loss which the demonetization of silver has brought to the mine owners is insignificant compared to the loss which this policy has brought to the rest of the people. The restoration of silver will bring to the people generally many times as much advantage as the mine owners can obtain from it.

It is the purpose of free coinage to specially aid any particular class, yet those who believe that the restoration of silver is needed by the whole people should not be deterred because an incidental benefit will come to the mine owner. The creation of the new currency of the United States, the improvement of rivers, the creation of public buildings, all these confer incidental benefits upon individuals and communities, and yet these incidental benefits do not deter us from making appropriations for these purposes whenever such appropriations are necessary for the public good.

The argument that a silver dollar is heavier than a gold dollar, and that therefore silver is less convenient to carry in large quantities, is completely answered by the silver certificate, which is as easily carried as the gold certificate or any other kind of paper money.

As to the Present Ratio.

There are some who, while admitting the benefits of bimetallicism, object to coinage at the present ratio. If any are deceived by this objection, they ought to remember that there are no bimetallicists who are content with securing a ratio of 16 to 1. We are opposed to any change in the ratio for two reasons: first, because a change would produce great injustice, and, second, because a change in the ratio is not necessary. A change would produce injustice because, if effected in the manner usually suggested, it would result in an enormous contraction in the volume of currency money.

If, for instance, it was decided by international agreement to raise the ratio throughout the world to 82 to 1, the change might be effected in any one of three ways.

The silver dollar could be doubled in size, so that the new silver dollar would weigh 32 times as much as the present gold dollar, or the present gold dollar could be reduced one-half in weight, so that the present silver dollar would weigh 32 times as much as the new gold dollar, or the change could be made by increasing the size of the silver dollar and decreasing the size of the gold dollar until the new silver dollar would weigh 32 times as much as the new gold dollar. Those who have usually suggested that the silver dollar be doubled in size, or that the gold dollar be reduced in size, or that the silver dollar be increased in size, are usually suggesting that the silver dollar be doubled in size, or that the gold dollar be reduced in size, or that the silver dollar be increased in size.

If this change were made, it would necessitate the recoinage of 4,000,000,000 of silver into $2,000,000,000. There would be an immediate loss of $2,000,000,000 either to individuals or to the government, but this would be the least of the injury. A shrinkage of one-half in the silver money of the world would mean a shrinkage of one-fourth in the total volume of metallic money. This contraction, by increasing the value of the dollar, would virtually increase the debts of the world billions of dollars and decrease still more the value of the property of the world as measured by dollars.

Besides this immediate result such a change in the ratio would permanently decrease the annual addition to the world's supply of money, because the annual silver product, when coined into dollars twice as large, would make only half as many dollars.

The people of the United States would be injured by a change in the ratio not because they produce silver, but because they own property and owe debts, and they cannot afford to thus decrease the value of their property or increase the burden of their debts.

In 1878 Mr. Carlisle said, "Mankind will be fortunate indeed if the annual production of gold and silver coin shall keep pace with the annual increase of population and industry." I repeat this assertion. All of the gold and silver annually available for coinage, when converted into coin at the present ratio, will not, in my judgment, more than supply our monetary needs.

The Sherman Act.

In supporting the act of 1890, known as the Sherman act, Senator Sherman, on June 5 of that year, said:

"Under the law of February, 1873, the value of $2,000,000 worth of silver bellieved a month has by coinage produced annually an average of nearly $5,000,000 per month for a period of 12 years, but this amount, in view of the retirement of the bank notes, will not increase our currency in proportion to our increasing population."

If our present currency is estimated at $1,400,000,000 and our population is increasing at the ratio of 1 per cent per annum, it would require $42,000,000 increased circulation each year to keep pace with the increase of population, but as the increase of population is accompanied by a still greater ratio of increase of wealth and business it was thought that an immediate increase of circulation might be obtained by larger purchases of silver bullion to an amount sufficient to make good the retirement of bank notes and keep pace with the growth of population. Assuming that $24,000,000 a year of additional coinage is required upon this basis, that amount is provided for in this bill by the issue of treasury notes in exchange for bullion at the market price.

If the United States then needed more than $24,000,000 annually to keep pace with population and business, it now business it was thought that an immediate increase of circulation might be obtained by larger purchases of silver bullion to an amount sufficient to make good the retirement of bank notes and keep pace with the growth of population. Assuming that $24,000,000 a year of additional coinage is required upon this basis, that amount is provided for in this bill by the issue of treasury notes in exchange for bullion at the market price.

The second place, a change in the ratio is not necessary. Hostile legislation has decreased the demand for silver and lowered the price when measured by gold, while the same hostile legislation, by increasing the demand for gold, has raised the value of gold when measured by either form of property.

We are told that the restoration of bimetallicism would be a hardship upon those who have entered into contracts payable in gold coin, but this is a mistake. It will be easier to obtain the gold with which to meet a gold contract, when most of the people own silver than it is now, when every one is trying to secure gold.

The Chicago platform expressly declares in favor of such legislation as may be necessary to prevent for the future the demonetization of any kind of legal tender money by private contract. Such contracts are objected to on the ground that they are against public policy. No one questions the right of legislatures to fix the rate of interest which can be collected by law. There is far more reason for preventing private individuals from setting aside legal tender law. The money which is law, made a legal tender, is the basis of the currency of the nation, and the freedom of the government, secured to all the people, freedom of conscience, freedom of thought and freedom of speech, guarantees equal rights to all and promises equal privileges to all. It is the duty of the government to protect the rights of the people, and to prevent the establishment of a privileged class.

Have not the people a right to say that a comparatively few individuals shall not be permitted to derange the financial system of the nation in order to collect a premium in case they succeed in forcing one kind of money to a premium?

If there is another argument to which I ask your attention, it is this: The zealous opponents of free coinage object to the fact that 13 months must elapse between the election and the first regular session of congress and assert that during that time, in case people declare themselves in favor of free coinage, all loans will be withdrawn, and all business will be closed. If these are merely prophesies indulged in by those who have forgotten the provisions of the constitution, it will be sufficient to remind them that the president is empowered to convene congress in extraordinary session whenever the public good requires such action. If in November the people by their ballots declare themselves in favor of the immediate restoration of bimetallicism, the system can be inaugurated within a few months.

If, however, the assertion that loans will be withdrawn and business closed is made to prevent such a result, the people may believe to be necessary for the preservation of their rights, then a new and vital issue is raised. Whenever it is necessary for the people as a whole to obtain consent from the owners of money and the changes of money before they can legislate upon financial matters, all the people have passed from a democracy to a plutocracy. But that time has not yet arrived. Threats and intimidation will be of no avail. The people who in 1776 rejected the doctrine that kings rule by right divine will not in this generation subscribe to a doctrine that money is omnipotent.

International Bimetallicism.

In conclusion, permit me to say a word in regard to international bimetallicism. We are not opposed to an international agreement looking to the restoration of bimetallicism throughout the world. The advocates of free coinage have all occasions shown their willingness to co-operate with other nations in the reinstatement of silver, but they are not willing to await the pleasure of other governments when bimetallic relief is needed by the people of the United States. They are not willing to wait until they are asked to do so, but they are willing to take the initiative in the restoration of silver, and they are willing to wait until they are asked to do so.

For more than 20 years we have invited the assistance of European nations, all progress in the direction of international bimetallicism has been blocked by the opposition of those who derive a pecuniary benefit from the appreciation of gold. How long must we wait for bimetallicism to be brought to us by those who profit by monometallicism? If the double standard will bring benefits to our people, who will deny them the right to enjoy these benefits? If our opponents would admit the right, the ability and the duty of our people to act for themselves, and all public questions without the assistance and regardless of the wishes of other nations, and then propose the remedial legislation which they consider sufficient, we could meet them in the field of honorable action, but when they assert that this nation is helpless to protect the rights of its own citizens we challenge them to submit the issue to a people whose patriotism has never been appealed to in vain.

We shall not offer other nations when we declare the right of the American people to govern themselves, and without let or hindrance from without, decide upon every question presented for their consideration. In taking this position we simply maintain the dignity of 70,000,000 citizens who second to none in their capacity for self government.

The gold standard has compelled the American people to pay an ever increasing tribute to the creditor nations of the world, a tribute which no one dares to defend. I assert that national honor requires the United States to secure justice for all its citizens as well as to do justice to all the nations. For a people like ours, blessed with natural resources of surpassing richness, to proclaim themselves impotent to frame a financial system suited to their own needs is humiliating beyond the power of language to describe. We cannot enforce respect for our foreign policy as long as we confess ourselves unable to frame our own financial policy.

Honest differences of opinion have always existed and ever will exist as to the legislation best calculated to promote the public weal, but when it is seriously asserted that this nation must bow to the dictation of other nations and accept the policies which they impose upon us, and that self government is assailed, and that the question is settled all other questions are insignificant.

They are ready to accept the principles of a living faith rather than the dead dogma of a dead faith. The funeral of the late Miss Flora Finlayson took place from the Congregational Church yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Long before the hour named, sorrowing friends of the deceased had gathered at the church, and it was soon filled to overflowing and many were unable to gain admission, but stood on the steps and sidewalk during the entire service, being anxious to even show in this manner how much they loved and respected Flora.

BOHEMIA.

Id rather live in Bohemia
Than in any other land, John Boyle O'Reilly.

Where lies the land Bohemia?
Is it enchanted ground?
Unto the place no guide or trace
Was e'er by searching found.

Yet many wander through it
In blindness or in scorn,
And some there dwell who love it well:
They are Bohemians born.

Here lies the land Bohemia!
Strange light upon its beams,
This border land, whose outer strand
Meets in the sea of dreams.

Behind an curtain the veil,
Tao world of strife and din;
Our kinder fate is here to wait Until our ships come in.

O'erhanging Bohemia,
Fame, like a mountain grand,
Flourishes the skies, uplifts our eyes
From this, the lotus land.

The sunbeams gleams in splendor
And beckons spirits bold—
Fain would we go, yet, ah! we know
The heights of fame are cold.

Here, resting in Bohemia, Beside the waters still,
In meadows green, where Hippocrene
Winds as a little rill.

We dream in pleasant places
And cast our fancies free,
Where grass and heart are more than art
And divinity survive.

—Henry Thoreau in New York Sun

Disproportioned Limbs.
By actual measurement of 50 skeletons
the right arm and left leg have been found to be longer in 22, the left arm and right leg in 6, the limbs on the right longer than those on the left in 4 and in the remainder the inequality of the limbs was varied. Only 7 out of 70 skeletons measured, or 10 per cent, had limbs of equal length.

Refusing the Baby.
The fond mother who puts her infant
on the penny slot weighing machine and exults over its pounds of solid flesh
only repeats the most ancient of customs, "hefting the baby." Thus Professor Chamberlain's remarks may furnish many valuable anthropometric data. Haberdashers have written a curious paper on the weighing of men in India and how the devotees to some of their gods propitiated them by a gift, the weight of which exactly corresponds with the ponderosity of the supplicant.
"Thou art weighed in a balance and found wanting" (Daniel) may have its origin in this custom. Critical examinations, curiously enough, were made in the past as to the effectiveness of prayer in Britanny when an ill man came to a certain shrine seeking a cure. He was weighed, so as to see whether he gained or lost flesh as the religious regimen
under the priests was being carried out.
Professor Chamberlain gives an Eskimo custom: When a man or a woman is sick, the nurse puts a stone under the patient's headrest. Then she weighs the stone in her hands daily, and if, supposedly, the stone feels heavier, then the sick one will be cured. If the stone seems to be lighter, then there is no chance of recovery. It is doubtful whether an Italian woman having a child born in America would ever submit it to the trial of the balance. It would be deemed unlucky. —New York Times.

Sympathy.
The Boston Transcript says that a clergyman was the recent guest of a friend who was a college president. On Sunday morning he arose very early and went out to take a walk in the delightful air. Not a soul was stirring at first, but as the clergyman's steps led him toward the business portion of the village
he noticed a seditious looking individual peering into various shady resorts in turn. He watched him with a mild curiosity, and apparently the other was not wholly oblivious of him and considered that the doctor of divinity was up for something. At last, after the two had proceeded all up and down the main street in silence, the clergyman suddenly turned and said to the other:
"The time has come when you must with me, and I shall have to put you in the stocks."

For your Protection.—Catarrh "Cures" or "Cures" for Catarrh in liquid form to be taken internally, usually contain either Mercury or Iodine of Potassa, or both, which are injurious if too long taken. Catarrh is a local, not a blood disease, caused by sudden change of cold or damp weather. It starts in the nasal passages, affecting eyes, ears and throat.
Cold in the head causes excessive flow of mucus, and, if repeatedly neglected, the results of catarrh will follow: severe pain in the head, a roaring sound in the ears, bad breath, and oftentimes an offensive discharge. The remedy should be quick to allay inflammation and heal the membrane. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for these troubles and contains no mercury nor any injurious drug. Price, 50 cents.
